

Are you able to help with kinesiology research?

A student in the Master of Clinical Research, at the University of Melbourne, is conducting two focus groups in July/August 2019 to explore the effects and impact of kinesiology and the outcomes that are important in peoples' lives. We hope to learn from a wide variety of clients who have had regular kinesiology sessions over the last 12 months.

We are looking for people to participate in the focus groups to discuss their experiences of attending kinesiology. If you are interested and answer YES to the questions below, please contact research student Ingrid Maine (contact details below).

Are you 18 years or over and living in Victoria, Australia?

Have you attended 3 or more kinesiology consultations in the last 12 months?

Are you willing to travel to the University of Melbourne and participate in a one-hour focus group?

Many thanks for your interest in this project. If you would like more information about the project, please contact the researchers. Please share with others who may be interested in participating.
